- (a) No, you just think I'm a fool and want to have me on! You call my land yours, and then you want me to talk to you calmly and politely ! Good neighbours don't behave like that, Stepan Stepanovitch! You're not a neighbour, you're a grabber!.

Sometimes it does people good to have their feelings hurt. The truth oughtn't to hurt anybody for long. If your father didn't go to the club so often, perhaps they'd stop laughing at him.

- (b) It seems odd that I should be your sister, a quite ordinary, commonplace woman, with nothing in my life but my love for my husband and my son. But when I hear you telling me to take a broad statesman like view of my son being blown to pieces, I begin to think that you're a fool, Henry—just a dull, unimaginative, bloodless fool.

Or

Fie, fie, Mother, I tell you again, don't delude yourself with this self humiliation—it is false, and a sin. Plenty of slaves are born of royal blood, but I am no slave; plenty of Chandals are born of Brahmin families, but I am no Chandal.

- (b) Translate the following passage into Hindi : 7

He who is lacking in hope must perish. No one can save him by offering alms or some other help. He must be made to realise that what is not possible for a single individual will be possible when fifty unite in group. A farmer can hardly do good business with a small surplus of a seer of milk, but if a hundred men collect all their spare milk, they can produce and sell ghee after they have bought a butter-cheering machine. In Europe this is a common practice.
